Fixed Income Market

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) in its Third Quarter Review of Monetary Policy reduced the cash reserve ratio (CRR) by 50 bps to 5.5%. With this move RBI infused liquidity of around Rs.32,000 crores in the system, which was facing tight liquidity conditions. The Repo rate and Reverse Repo rate were kept unchanged at 8.5% and 7.5% respectively. This action was broadly in line with consensus expectations.

By reducing CRR, RBI has attempted to address structural pressures on liquidity and mitigate downside risks to growth due to tight liquidity conditions. RBI's policy stance was clearly dovish, as it admitted that growth was decelerating. This was due to a combination of uncertain global environment, cumulative impact of past monetary policy tightening and domestic policy uncertainties.

The WPI inflation eased to 7.47% in December, the lowest level in two years. However, non-food manufacturing inflation (WPI) continued to be high at 7.69%. Fuel inflation moderated slightly, as crude oil prices remained range bound. Food inflation decelerated to 3.1% in December as compared to 8.1% in the previous month. This helped WPI inflation to cool off in December.

India's Industrial Production (IIP) growth accelerated sharply to 5.9% in November 2011.

This was above consensus expectations of 2.1%. The manufacturing output growth rebounded strongly. Notably, consumer goods growth advanced strongly to 13.1% as compared to a growth of 0.2% in October 2011.

The growth in Central government's aggregate gross tax collections decelerated to 8.6% in December from 19.6% in November. The weakness mainly reflected a fall in custom duty collections and deceleration in corporate tax collections. On FY12 basis, gross and net tax collections are running below budget estimates. The total non-tax revenues declined by 56% in December as compared to -0.4% in November. The FY12 fiscal deficit is a cause of concern and is expected to be higher than budgeted.

Bond markets rallied due to the CRR cut and continued expectations from RBI towards an easy monetary policy in the near future. Short term yields were high as the liquidity remained tight.

Equity Market

The month of January 2012 was the best New Year start for Indian equity markets in almost two decades. This rally has largely been liquidity driven, fuelled by positive economic data and increasing risk appetite among global investors. There has been a clear shift in the stance of emerging market Central Banks from reigning in inflation to focusing on economic growth. This, coupled with low interest rates in developed economies, has led to a significant rebound in manufacturing growth across various geographies.

Emerging markets outperformed developed markets with Russia, India and Brazil posting double digit returns of 14%, 12% and 11% respectively. US markets were up by 3% while Japan, UK and Germany increased by 4%, 2% and 10% respectively.

Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) turned positive on India after many months with almost USD 2 bn inflows as against a net outflow of USD 512 mn in 2011. INR surged by 7% on the back of strong capital inflows and recouped almost half the losses it incurred last year.

Sectoral Performance

The Banking sector was amongst the top performing sectors, as banking stocks were direct beneficiaries of the CRR reduction and expectations of a rate cut from RBI in the near future. The Quarterly results were better than expectations from private sector banks and in line from most public sector banks. Although there are continued concerns regarding credit growth, rising NPAs and restructuring of assets, market participants believe that the immediate positives outweigh the negatives.

During the month, Capital Goods and Construction sector outperformed the index, largely due to sudden investment inflows into these under-owned sectors. Better than expected results of a large engineering company, along with CRR cut by RBI helped boost investor sentiments in this sector.

Oil marketing companies performed well, as these stocks had fallen significantly and were available at reasonable valuations. During the month, Reliance Industries announced a buy back offer, which cheered investor sentiments further.

Following global cues, metal stocks rallied sharply during the month with the metal index up by 25%. Global risk aversion faded, with increased optimism about the resolution of Euro crisis and better than expected economic data from the US.

Outlook on Fixed Income Market

We expect RBI to continue OMO's (Open Market Operations) in February, as liquidity is expected to be tight due to significant borrowings in dated securities and T-Bills. We expect the bond market to be positive going forward, as RBI has clearly indicated a reversal of policy stance. Although RBI is concerned about growth, it feels that inflation poses a risk.

We expect inflationary pressures to ease, going forward. Given recent developments, we are positive on bond market in the near term. However, uncertainty in crude oil prices and revision in fiscal deficit target pose risks to our positive outlook.

Outlook on Equity Market

From a policy action and reforms standpoint, the New Year has begun with quite a few important policy actions, notably FDI in single brand retail, Aviation Ministry's nod for 49% FDI in civil aviation and greater coordination among key states for implementing of goods and services tax (GST).

RBI has taken several measures to reduce liquidity stress and attract capital. In addition to injecting money in the economy, the 50 bps CRR cut announced in the last credit policy has clearly signaled that inflation pressures have subsided. The deregulation of NRE deposit rates are welcome steps for attracting foreign capital.

Post the recent sharp upward movement, markets may consolidate ahead of state elections and the Union Budget. Though global data points continue to show improving trend, the European situation is still unresolved and may remain a key overhang. Notwithstanding the near term concerns, we remain optimistic on Indian equity markets.
