Sindhu is PNB MetLife brand ambassador

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT MUMBAI

PNB MetLife, a life insurance company, signed P.V. Sindhu as its brand ambassador. The endorsement extends to various initiatives dealing with women's empowerment organised by the company, more importantly a national-level open tournament, named the PNB MetLife junior badminton championship, aimed at spotting budding age-group talents and support for the exceptionally talented.

Even without Marin, All England will not be easy

MUMBAI: Following her 2016 Rio Olympic Games success, PV Sindhu's career graph has soared. After clinching silver at the World Championships, Asian Games, Commonwealth Games and India Open, among other, the crowning glory came at the 2018 World Tour Finals where she won gold. Sindhu, who became the brand ambassador of PNB MetLife on Friday, spoke exclusively on the sidelines of the event.

Excerpts:

Five silver and ending 2018 with the World Tour Finals gold. How has it boosted your morale? I'm happy I ended the year on a good note. It gives mea lot of confidence. I hope 2019 will be a good year. It is also the qualification year for the Olympics.

The All England is a little over a month away. Do you consider yourself favourite? Yeah, it is one of the best tournaments. I'm preparing for it but right now we have the nationals.

It (All England) is not going to be easy because everybody is going to be at their best.

Carolina Marin has a knee injury and Tai Tzu Ying is recovering from a wrist injury. Does that give you an advantage?

I don't think so because a lot of players are doing great. I think Chen Yufei and He Bingjiao are doing quite well. You need to play your game and give your best because I feel that on that day, whoever gives their best emerges winner.

You lost to Marin in straight games at the Indonesia Masters recently. How do you recover mentally after losing like this?

I made a lot of unforced errors

The top 10-15 players are of the same standard. If you see, it's not that I have been losing to the same opponent again and again.

PV SINDHU, on her toughest rival and that is not the way I play. But I need to take it positively and learn from my mistakes. I hope to come back stronger.

Your thoughts on the international federation's latest rules stipulating the minimum number of tournaments one has to play every year? I think they have made it compulsory to play some tournaments. But for that, you have to be physically and mentally strong because sometimes you are fatigued and you can't play. So, if you have to skip tournaments then you have to. You don't have any other choice. It's important you give your 100 per cent rather than just go there, play and come back.

What's your aim for 2019?

Ineed to stay fit because there are a couple of Super Series and World Championships, and after that the Olympic qualification.

Is the world No 1 rank possible? Iwant to see myself as world No 1. Right now, I'm three or four. The top five-six players are separated by a few points, so you never know.

No cakewalk PV Sindhu says Marin's withdrawal doesn't mean All England Championship will be easy

S tar Indian shuttler P V Sindhu Thursday said it won't be an easy outing for her at the upcoming All England championship even in the expected absence of injured reigning Olympic Champion, Carolina Marin.

The All England Championship is tobeheld from March 6 and Rio Olympics silver medallist Sindhu feets she would have to give her 100 per cent there in order to win the women's sin-

"We have the nationals and then we have the All England Championships. It (All England) is one of the biggest tournaments and I hopeI give my best, play well and I know it is not going to be easy. I think we have to be at our 100 per cent," said Sindhu here afterbeing named as the brand ambassador of life insurance company PNB Methife.

After that we have couped is uper Series and then we start with our Olympic qualifications this year, where we will have to keep ourselves fit and healthy," Sindhu told reporters.

Coach Vimal Kumar had remarked that with Spaniard Carolina out, it was a good chance for Sindhu and another top Indian woman shuttler Saina Nehwal at the All England Championship. But Sidhu begged to differ saving there would be other top players in the fray. "She (Marin) had a knee surgery. Definitely a sad moment, but injuries are part of life. Definitely she will comebackstronger. Ihopefora speedy recovery (for Marin)."

"I just can't say it is a good chance. Definitely it is not going to be easy. Recause as I said the top 10 to 15 players are of the same standard. If one just goes off (not competing), you cannot think that it's going to be an easy draw orit's going to be a cakewalk. No!

"Every match is equally tough because every player has a different style of play. Now the Chinese are doing really well - Chen Yufei, H E Bingliao, and from Korea Sung Ji Hyun, and Ratchanok Intanon (from Thailand) are doing well. So there are a couple of players from every country who are doing really well, "she explained. Marin, reigning World Cham-

Sindhu ended 2018 on a high after winning the World Tour Finals.

"I think on that particular day, whoeverplayswell and gives their best is the winner. I feel the top 1 to 10 players are of same standard in the world. Each point is very important. You just can't think that this opponent is easy, can just play lightly at the start and then catch up," she noted. PT

All England Championships will not be easy even without Carolina Marin: PV Sindhu

HIGHLIGHTS

Carolina Marin, reigning World Champion, will be out of action for at least six months

Marin suffered a leg injury in the Indonesia Masters final against Saina Nehwal last week

"I think we have to be at our 100 per cent during the All England," Sindhu said

Star Indian shuttler PV Sindhu Thursday said it won't be an easy outing for her at the upcoming All England Championships even in the expected absence of injured reigning Olympic champion, Carolina Marin.

The All England Championship is to be held from March 6 and Rio Olympics silver medallist Sindhu feels she would have to give her 100 per cent there in order to win the women's singles title.

"We have the nationals and then we have the All England Championships. It [All England] is one of the biggest tournaments and I hope I give my best, play well and I know it is not going to be easy. I think we have to be at our 100 per cent," said Sindhu here after being named as the brand ambassador of life insurance company PNB Metlife.

"After that we have couple of Super Series and then we start with our Olympic qualifications this year, where we will have to keep ourselves fit and healthy," Sindhu told reporters.

Coach Vimal Kumar had remarked that with Spaniard Carolina out, it was a good chance for Sindhu and another top Indian woman shuttler Saina Nehwal at the All England Championship.

But Sindhu begged to differ saying there would be other top players in the fray.

"She [Marin] had a knee surgery. Definitely a sad moment, but injuries are part of life. Definitely she will comeback stronger. I hope for a speedy recovery [for Marin]."

"I just can't say it is a good chance. Definitely it is not going to be easy. Because as I said the top 10 to 15 players are of the same standard. If one just goes off [not competing], you cannot think that it's going to be an easy draw or it's going to be a cakewalk. No!

"Every match is equally tough because every player has a different style of play. Now the Chinese are doing really well - Chen Yufei, HE Bingjiao, and from Korea Sung Ji Hyun, and Ratchanok Intanon [from Thailand] are doing well. So there are a couple of players from every country who are doing really well," she explained.

Marin, reigning World Champion, will be out of action for at least six months after she suffered a leg injury in the Indonesia Masters final against Saina and had to undergo surgery.

Meanwhile, Sindhu is aiming to win some more Super Series titles.

"Definitely, want to win some of the Super Series, keep myself fit and healthy and prepare well. Nothing specific," she responded to a query about her plans for 2019.

Sindhu ended 2018 on a high after winning the World Tour Finals.

"I am very happy 2018 has ended on a very good note. But 2018 is over, now it is 2019. It is a fresh year, new year and new resolutions, and I hope that I will just give my best and just play my game, improve a lot more. I am quite confident but I shouldn't be over-confident in that way, thinking that I can win against anybody, as I said.

"I think on that particular day, whoever plays well and gives their best is the winner. I feel the top 1 to 10 players are of same standard in the world. Each point is very important. You just can't think that this opponent is easy, can just play lightly at the start and then catch up," she noted

PV Sindhu requests people to shed the burden of their responsibilities

PNB MetLife has launched its new brand campaign, #ShedTheWait, in association with brand ambassador PV Sindhu, the Ace badminton player, and Olympic medallist. The campaign urges its audience to stop letting the responsibilities of tomorrow become a burden today.

The film showcases a P V Sindhu requesting people to check their weight on the weighing scale. Appalled users find themselves with exaggerated weight - more than their actual weights. This is when Sindhu explains to them the weight includes the burden of their responsibilities. The consumers thus need to get rid of their exaggerated weight and 'Shed the Wait'. With a partner like PNB MetLife by their side to protect their family, they can live their life to the fullest today and have a secure future. This campaign reasserts PNB MetLife's brand positioning 'Milkar Life Aage Badhayein' which aims at fulfilling customer needs at different stages of life be it Child Education, Wealth Creation, Savings or Protection.

The idea of 'Milkar Life Aage Badhayein' will also be inculcated across the Company's Corporate Social Responsibility initiative - 'Damini'. Here, Sindhu will support various initiatives under Damini, which empowers girls at every stage of their journey in becoming a woman. Besides this, Sindhu endorses PNB MetLife Junior Badminton Championship to nurture talent at grassroots level. The event focusses on children within the age group of 7 to 17yrs by nurturing the right talent at an amateur level, she will lead the hunt for the next PV Sindhu.

Mr. Nipun Kaushal, Chief Marketing Officer, PNB MetLife, said, "We are happy to launch our new brand campaign - #ShedTheWait featuring P.V. Sindhu. Her commitment on and off the court is commendable. From bagging world titles and Olympic medals for the country to advocating positive change, P.V. Sindhu has made a difference to the community at large. She represents the spirit of perseverance, discipline, and determination – the qualities which PNB MetLife believes in. Along with driving our commitment to serve the society at large, we felt that PV Sindhu is the perfect personality to bring out the essence of this campaign."

The film is currently being promoted across PNB MetLife's social media assets.

Sindhu advises to #ShedTheWait of responsibilities in PNB MetLife TVC

PV Sindhu, India's iconic female brand ambassador, is spreading a message to #ShedtheWait of responsibilities to lead a healthy life.

The new TVC by PNB MetLife, featuring Sindhu, points that how panning and securing future can help #ShedTheWait of responsibilities to lead a healthy and happy life. The campaign suggests people to not let the worries about future responsibilities become a burden on life now.

In the TVC, Sindhu asks people to check their weight on a weighing scale and then with the figures which shock them with unrealistic weight the shuttler explains that the how the uncounted burden of their responsibilities affects an individual.

This campaign reasserts PNB MetLife's brand positioning 'Milkar Life Aage Badhayein' which aims at fulfilling customer needs at different stages of life-be it Child Education, Wealth Creation, Savings or Protection.
