Economy

During the month of March 2013, Indian economy continued to face the problem of low growth as seen from industrial production numbers. Inflation as measured by Wholesale Price Index (WPI) inched up to 6.8% in February as against 6.6% in January. An uptick in fuel prices due to increase in diesel and LPG prices were the main reasons for higher inflation number. However, core inflation moderated to 3.8% as compared to 4.1% during January 2013. The CPI inflation for February was 10.8%, nearly the same as Jan 2013.

As widely expected, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) reduced repo rates by 25 bps (from 7.75% to 7.50%) in its mid-quarter monetary policy. Accordingly, reverse repo rate which is at a fixed spread of 100 bps lower than repo rate, has been revised to 6.50%. However, RBI gave a somewhat hawkish guidance stating that the room for further monetary easing was limited. The Central Bank raised concerns about high food inflation as well as high current account deficit.

Equity Market

Indian equity markets turned volatile in March after DMK, an ally of the UPA government, decided to withdraw its support. Though there does not appear to be any immediate threat to the stability of the government, investors are becoming increasingly nervous about the political uncertainty and continuity of economic reforms. The economic data points continue to show a mixed-bag performance for the economy.

Global equity markets too remained edgy as, around middle of the month, the Euro group reached a preliminary agreement with Cyprus government to bail out the banking system by imposing tax on deposit holders. This came as a shock to investors. However, markets recovered after the final discussions which removed the uniform deposit tax.

Developed markets continue to outperform with US and Japan gaining 4% and 7% respectively, while U.K. and Germany grew by 1% each. The emerging markets continue to remain under pressure on the back of slowing economic growth. China, Russia and Brazil fell by 5.5%, 5% and 2% respectively. After showing significant volatility during the month, the Indian market ended flat. Industrial commodities, which are positively correlated with emerging markets growth, declined during the month with zinc, aluminum and copper declining by 8%, 5% and 4% each.

The FII inflows into Indian market continued to remain positive with inflow of USD 1.7 bn. The cumulative FII inflows for first quarter of CY13 now stand at USD 10.3 bn as compared to USD 25 bn for entire CY12.

Sectoral Performance

The Automobile sector fell by 4% in March owing to slowing growth across all segments. High inflation, slowing economic growth and bleak outlook are having an adverse impact on consumer sentiment. The two-wheeler segment is witnessing intense competition owing to demand slowdown, while the four-wheeler segment is witnessing demand postponement due to affordability issue. The commercial vehicle segment, which is considered a proxy for economic growth, has also seen increased competition and demand deferment.

MARKET OUTLOOK

The Power sector underperformed as sector specific reforms were postponed, thereby dampening investor sentiments. New project announcements continued to remain muted during the month. No major power plant or road project saw the light of the day. In addition to this, banks declined to pass on the benefit of rate reduction to corporates, thereby providing no respite to the highly leveraged infrastructure sector.

The Fast Moving Consumer Goods (FMCG) sector outperformed during the month as investors shifted from high beta sectors such as Power, Infrastructure and Real Estate to defensive sectors such as FMCG. This sector also benefits from any pre-election spending by the government.

Equity Market Outlook

The global economy is showing a divergent trend. On one hand, developed markets such as US and Japan are showing improving economic outlook, while on the other hand emerging markets such as China, India and Brazil have been witnessing economic slowdown.

From India's perspective, in the medium term global investors would focus on the government's ability to push through reforms amid political uncertainty. However, in the near term, corporate earnings season for Q4 FY13 starting mid-April will provide the next trigger for the market. Investors would keenly focus on management commentaries on demand outlook, margin guidance and earnings performance.

The global liquidity conditions remain benign indicated by strong FII inflows. The Indian equity market valuations look attractive and are below the five year average. We remain positive on equities from medium to long term perspective.

Debt Market and Outlook

Government securities market was bearish during the month of March 2013. While IIP growth was higher than expectation and WPI inflation was a negative surprise, market was supported by the falling core inflation (non-food manufacturing inflation) number which fell below 4% after a long period. This led to a strong expectation about a possible rate cut by RBI in the upcoming monetary policy. The 10-year benchmark Government security yield fell below 7.85% largely based on these expectations.

As expected, RBI cut rates by 25 bps in the mid-quarter monetary policy. However, it did not give an encouraging guidance about its future course of action. The Central Bank stated that it expected WPI inflation to remain around the current level in coming months. It also stated that high food inflation and high current account deficit were worrying signs for the economy.

As a result, there was a sell-off in the bond market and the 10-year GSec yield increased sharply to around 7.95% in second half of the month. Overall the fixed income market continued to be bearish largely due to hawkish RBI commentary.

Corporate bond yields were supported as there was no issue of impending supply like the Government securities market. The yield on 10-year AAA rated bond was in the range of 8.80-9.0% throughout the month. In the money market, Certificate of Deposit (CD) rates fell sharply due to the rate cut by RBI and expectation of better liquidity from the next month. The one year CD rates fell from around 9.35% at February end to 8.80% by March end.

Going forward, it is expected that RBI would reduce rates over the next few months to support economic growth. However, the timing and quantum of rate cuts would depend on growth-inflation dynamics in the economy. From RBI's commentary, it appears that it may not be able to cut rates significantly from the current levels. Nevertheless, we expect interest rates to soften over the medium term horizon.
